Glades Day sets 1976 graduation plans for Friday

Valedictorians Ignacio Alvarez and Julio Sanchez will be the main speakers at 8 p.m. Friday when the 43 seniors of Glades Day School are graduated at McWhorter Hall.

As usual, Mrs. Miriam Burgess, headmistress of the private school on Airport Road, said there will be no guest speakers, "because this is their (the graduates) day."

Graduation festivities actually got underway for the Glades Day seniors last week when class night was held. Baccalaureate services were held Sunday at the Community United Methodist Church with the Rev. Ralph Johnson bringing the message.

Mrs. Burgess said the seniors were all out of class this week as they make ready for the final commencement exercises for graduating seniors in three high schools in the Glades.

During the senior night presentations, Mrs. Burgess said, the W. LeRoy and Elizabeth Taylor Foundation Scholarship, for the student with the highest scholastic average, went to Ignacio Alvarez.

Alvarez was one of four senior graduating with high honors. The other three were Julio Sanchez, Paula Walker and Cindy Gummere.

Alvarez and Sanchez, along with Eddie Gomez, Carlos Torres and Dale Stapp, were named in the Florida Regents award.

Citizenship awards went to Paula Walker and Eddie Gomez as seniors and Nancy Sorrow and Jimmy Chambliss as freshmen.

Subject awards went to Beth Bryant in English, Bill Thompson in history, Ann Thibaud in math, Julio Sanchez in Science, Diane Duda and Julio Sanchez in journalism, Ann Cross and Michelle Harris in band and Sherri Mace in business.

Nelly Jimenez of Costa Rica won a foreign plaque. Diane Duda won the Beta Award and Ann Thibaud was recognized for being named the Beta Club vice president.

Chosen best all-around girl and boy were Ann Thibaud and Bill Thompson.

Historical Society seeking members

Glades residents interested in becoming charter members of the Glades Historical Society are being urged to attend the society's charter meeting at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 6 at the Belle Glade Municipal Library.

Besides the open applications for charter membership in the society, a slate of officers and directors will be presented as well as the proposed by-laws.

The society is still in the organizational stages and has only recently sent incorporation papers to the Florida Department of State in Tallahassee.

During the last meeting, members of the society decided they would like to contact a number of residents of Lake Harbor, South Bay, Pahokee and Canal Point to serve as directors.

Cables repaired

What could have been hairy as an explosion in a spaghetti factory was taken care of by Southern Bell Telephone workmen this week...but it was a hard day's night getting done. The workmen are shown here making the final repairs to two cables handling a combined total of 2,400 lines for the company. Southern Bell area supervisor

Richard Sweat said all the lines to South Bay went out Monday afternoon and the last were restored to service at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday. The outage was called when a bulldozer hit a line supplying air pressure to the two cables, a 600 and an 1800 pair, and water shorted out the cables.

South Bay feels growing pains

SOUTH BAY—Action was taken by the city commission Tuesday to improve and expand both water and sewer systems, with commissioners committing both the services are of top priority.

Palm Beach Health Department engineer Frank Garguilo asked the city to make a commitment to improve its sewer distribution system so the county can authorize the addition of 200 housing units in a project being built by South Bay Growers.

Garguilo said the city's sewer treatment plant is in good condition but infiltration is allowing so much water into the system it is overworking the plant. He said that if infiltration could be cut down to a reasonable level, the plant will be capable of handling the extra, 60,000 gallons of sewage per day.

City Finance Director A. R. Grisby told the commissioners the administration is coming up with an engineering plan and a proposal to expand the polishing pond. He said the plan will hopefully take care of the problem.

Garguilo said later South Bay Growers had originally applied to the county health department to build a package treatment plant but he had told them he would rather see the city take care of its problems so it could handle the sewage from the housing project.

The commissioners also authorized a report by Barker, Osha and Anderson, an engineering firm, in Delray Beach, which will hopefully bring Farmers Home Administration funds to improve and expand the city's water system.

Charles Anderson of the engineering firm told the commissioners he thought the city's water problems will probably take longer to solve than its sewer problems because of the lead

Miss Walker FAU prexy

Dorothy Walker, a Glades Central graduate and former Palm Beach Junior College Glades student, who completed her entire two-year program at PBJC-Glades has just been elected president of the student body at Florida Atlantic University.

Dr. Cecil Conley, Vice President PBJC-Glades, sent his former student a letter commending her on her latest achievement.

Miss Walker daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Walker, of Belle Glade, social worker, is the first black ever elected as head of the student government at FAU.

A Criminal Justice major, the new president was also active at the PBJC-Glades campus, according to Fred die L. Harrell, counselor.

"She was very energetic and outspoken—a good student—who served as secretary of the student government on the Glades campus," Harrell said.

"A 'B' student, she worked her way through college by cashing at a local super market," he added.

Dr. Conley commented that he had recently sent a letter of recommendation for Miss Walker to attend law school.

time mandatory in such a large operation.

Anderson and Grisby said the report, already being prepared by Barker, Osha and Anderson which the city authorized Tuesday, may be presented to FmHA as early as late next week.

Anderson said he believes the chances are good the city will receive enough water bills, "as high as we can stand," Anderson said the high rates will help the chances of the city in getting grants rather than loans from FmHA.

Grisby said the report authorized by the city would be paid for out of funds received from FmHA. The cost of the report is being limited to no more than $5,000.

In other action, the commission urged members of the Glades Women's Softball League to try to get cooperation in improving the ball park at the city park.

Four members of the league appeared at the meeting to request the city to bring in more aid to build up the infield and extensive repairs to the lighting system.

Mayor Jay Smith said he would see the streets department sent a man down to look at the field but in the meantime, "I'd love to see each of the teams help pay for it. How about you going back to your league and asking for help and come back to us at the next meeting."

Byron Walker said the field was originally built by cooperative effort and that might be the way to make sure it stays in condition.

League President Cheryl Waters said league members have already attempted to get help from sponsors and other businesses to work on the field. She said each league member pays dues and the sponsor of each team also pays a fee but all that goes toward buying team equipment.

Thomas Adams, who said the sponsors a boys team, told the commissioners and the women that if other leagues could donate the clay for the infield, he felt he could get his boys to spread it.

15 injured in collision

One man was in "guarded" condition Wednesday morning and 14 others had been treated or admitted to Glades General Hospital following a three-vehicle accident on SR715 near the West Area Administrative Offices.

Joseph Lee Randolph of 1565 East Main St. in Pahokee was seriously injured and in hospital condition at Glades General after the pickup truck he had been driving south at 6:10 a.m. had been struck head-on by a labor bus.

Florida Highway Patrol Trooper D. P. Bramlett reported the labor bus, driven by Cleo Robinson, 34, of 15 Davis Dr. in Belle Glade, was attempting to pass a car driven by Ethel Parrish Maloy, 65, of 1108 W. Canal St. in Belle Glade, when the accident occurred.

Robinson wasn't injured in the accident but 14 of the 45 farm workers on the bus received various injuries and some were treated and released at the hospital while others were admitted.

A hospital source said late Wednesday morning no further information was available at that time and could give no report on how many were admitted or their condition.

Louise Weathers of 1108 W. Canal St. a passenger in the automobile, was injured. Bramlett reported he charged Robinson with improper passing while meeting an oncoming vehicle.

by opposing legislators

Marina plans may be scuttled

Plans to more than double the size of the Belle Glade City Marina in a $2 million project may be scuttled before the first shovel-full of earth is moved if some legislators in Tallahassee have their way.

While no one appears to know anything concrete at this point, the South and Central Florida Flood Control District's involvement in recreation could possibly be brought to a halt more by what is not said than what has been said in the present legislative session. The FCD made an agreement with the city to build an expanded city recreation area before raising the level of Lake Okeechobee in return for an agreement by the city to turn over the city-owned property on Torrey Island.

The plans had been for the FCD to complete the construction and then lease the newly-expanded marina and camping area to the city for $1 a year. But those plans could fall victim to what appears to be a move by legislators from other areas to change the boundaries of the FCD and create at least one sub-basin district.

The problem is that the FCD has been involved in recreation projects in several places as a result of special legislation drawn up in the 1940's and 1960's. Part of that legislation is now being superseded by general legislation being drafted on water management district for which funding was approved in the Mar. 9 Florida Presidential Primary.

Under the special legislation, the FCD was allowed to levy one-fifth of a mill for recreational purposes.

No such allowance is being made under the legislation now being considered by the Natural Resources Committee, according to Committee staff member Tom Herbert.

"There was some discussion

On the tenth of May, I had an honor bestowed upon me along with many other city employees when the city commission gave service pins for the number of years we have worked.

I have waited 18 years to get this pin and was out of town at the time attending another happy event that I have waited for: the graduation of my daughter, Sharon B. Vereen, from college.

Darian (Peanut) and Valerie took their first flight to town at the time attending another happy event that I have waited for: the graduation of my daughter, Sharon B. Vereen, from college. Miss Helen Gaine of Miami spent Sunday in town with Irene Vereen because Sharon was out of town. Helen was Sharon's roommate in college.

Miss Shirley Cooper and a friend of Miami worshipped with us at the Mt. Zion A.M.E. Church Sunday. Rev. Charles Robinson and the congregation rendered service at 3:30 p.m. Sunday at Heart Chapel A.M.E. Church in Riviera Beach to help them celebrate their Men's Day.

Mrs. Ruby Rutledge was host for the Elite Club meeting Sunday at her home. The members met to complete plans for the annual Debutante's Ball to be held on May 29. After the meeting Mrs. Rutledge served us the works in food for she had a variety and each lady ate her fill and was glad she came.

sion about recreation," Herbert said, "but nothing definite was decided. It's not so much what is being said as what isn't being said. FCD attorney Robert Grafton said he wasn't sure whether the FCD will be able to go ahead with the recreational plans because "everything is still up in the air." Grafton pointed out that the proposed legislation hasn't been adopted as yet, that it hasn't even been brought to the floor and may go before more committees, and the wording may not be what is finally passed by the House.

FCD public information officer Lawrence Nunn said the recreational funds may be a tool being used by legislators attempting to make other changes and may be just being used to "muddy the water."

He said there is a move afoot in the legislature to have the area around Orlando removed from the FCD on the grounds the district to which it would be moved would levy lower taxes. He said there is also a question about the proposed channelization of Shingle Creek, which flows into Lake Tohopekaliga. "We've already had our fingers burned by channelization," he said. "We don't believe that's the way to go."

Nunn said there is also an effort being made to create a sub-basin district in Collier and Lee Counties, now included as part of the Southwest Florida Water Management District. On both the problems, he pointed out that the whole idea of the five water management districts set up in 1972 and 1973 legislation was to divide the state into five hydrological areas, without politics becoming involved.

Ten G.C. girls named to All Conference

Glades Central girls track team coach Jay Seider said a total of ten team members were named Monday night to the All-Conference team chosen by coaches of the Suncoast Conference.

Seider said the awards went to Kathleen Ford in the shotput, Glenda Dixon in the discus throw, Terry Osborne in the long jump, Alma Rolle in the 110 yard low hurdles, Patricia Jones in the 100 yard dash and Rose Wilkerson in the 440 yard sprint.

Other girls placed on the All-Conference team were Alice Ford and Linda Baldwin on the 440 yard relay team, Janie Johnson on the 880 relay team and Belinda Gaines on the 880 medley relay team.

Your Proof Is In Our Prices..Everyday

It's not all that simple

Isn't it peculiar how a person can suddenly become an oracle on what the public wants when his personal chestnuts are in the fire?

That was the way of it this week when Richard Batchelder, president of the FEA/United teachers union made the flat comment that the public around the state, "would rather see adjustments on alcoholic beverage taxes at the state level to keep school programs from being butchered further than to have their property taxes hiked again."

There isn't much doubt that "the public" is in favor of education but from that point on, what "the public" would rather see the legislator do is open to conjecture.

Being for education is just about in the same class as favoring God, Mother and Apple Pie but people around the state have been known to balk when it comes to paying the piper, or rather, paying the teachers.

The feeling we get through our limited contacts is that while people still want to see their kids get a good education, they still don't want to see any new taxes, either on property or alcohol or general retail sales.

Speaking just for ourselves, mostly because we aren't omniscient enough to know what "the public" thinks, it seems as though the legislators have the right idea in thinking liquor and cigarettes have become too much of a whipping boy when it comes to raising taxes.

It wasn't that long ago that we pointed out just how high those taxes already are, without adding the 34 per cent the unionized teachers and school administrators wanted to tack on.

Besides, education is something that benefits everybody around the state and we don't see why legislators who decided the taxes needed to support the schools should be spread around should be suddenly labeled as anti-education.

You and me

It wasn't anything new or startling but the idea that came out of the South Bay City Commission meeting Tuesday night of a cooperative effort to refurbish the city's ball diamond is no less sound for all that.

Recreation is a legitimate function of municipal government, and the city should probably take a lead role, but at a time when the cities are as strained as everyone else to meet their budgets, it behooves those who benefit most to offer a helping hand.

The main ingredient needed to make the South Bay ball park a good place to play ball appears to be a heaping portion of sweat and elbow grease...and that's one thing at least which can be furnished by those who would use the park.

The same formula has been used in other areas, and in times past, on this same park, and could also be used in other parks in this area.

Cooperative efforts are in the tradition of the Glades, as well as other pioneer societies, and in the nation's bicentennial year, that somehow seems appropriate. It might even be appropriate to handle the problem this same way every year before the season begins.

"It is coming to the same thing it has been coming to for thousands of years. It will not end. Or at least if the end of the world should come, humanity's treatment of humanity will have remained the same, for that which we consider a flaw is merely an overall symptom of being human," I replied. "If the end should be by fire, we will have people killing each other over asbestos suits."

"How can you be so content?" "It is the goodness in the human spirit!" she asked.

"I do not hold goodness in contempt. Goodness, goodness knows, is good. But I seem to remember hundreds of cases where human kindness has backfired and caused the untimely demise of thousands of people. The Inquisition is a prime example."

"We, and the world, are getting worse," she sighed.

"No," I replied. "We are no worse nor any better than we were when we first learned to stand upright. Cain used a rock to kill Abel. David used a slingshot to kill Goliath. Later knives, spears, arrows, bullets, poison and other means of disposing of each other came into popularity. Now we have the most beautiful of bombs capable of leveling continents. But we're not satisfied. Humanity will know true, complete and absolute happiness when it has destroyed not only itself but everything with it."

"That's terrible!" she exclaimed.

"Do you think we have much longer?"

"At least another 24 hours," I replied. "They wouldn't dare destroy the world and risk disturbing my sleep. Good evening, madam. Rest well."

"What is this world coming to? Where is it all going to end?" She moaned.

"A fact of life over there since the time of King Menes—since approximately 3200 B.C.," I replied.

"What is this world coming to? Where is it all going to end?" She moaned.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

There are image makers and then there are image destroyers. That's what Wray said the other day when a sweet young thing pulled a first on me by bringing a gardenia to work with her and placing it tenderly on my desk.

I'll have to admit the idea of a gardenia floating around in a coffee mug on the desk doesn't do much for the image of what I've heard one newsmen call "us professional drunks".

I offered to take it out of the coffee cup (cut crystal vases are in short supply around here) and stick the stem down the neck of the bottle of Old Overholt I keep in the bottom desk drawer but even that wouldn't do.

Nosirree, Billy Bobtail. When it comes to gardenias, Wray said they had to go...that they were destroying the character of the whole office.

Actually, the second day rolled around and there was still just the one posie here. Hadn't multiplied overnight but on the other finger it hadn't yellowed up and died yet, either.

It was causing more trouble, though, because another sweet young thing who happens to labor in the Herald vineyard came in and took real umbrage when the first SYT didn't want her to touch the petals because they'd curl up and catch leprosy or something.

Didn't really matter anyway by then. I'd given the gardenia its first slug of sippin' whiskey and there ain't nothin' nobody could do that would bother it, with the possible exception of feeding it some of the recycled printer's ink that passes for coffee around here.

That might have sobered things up. Matter of fact that would in all likelihood have killed it off. God knows it's strong enough.

We used to use the coffee to clean the presses until we discovered it was what was rotting the rubber rollers and sending them to an early grave.

That was before the experiment of using it to clean the floors with and we started to notice the bare ground underneath the concrete. (We finally had to give up all those experiments. That stuff's good for only one thing and that's human consumption.)

Anyway, getting back to the gardenia (remember it?) the Old Overholt had taken hold and it was thriving. Had a nice side effect too.

We'd been getting quite a few flies in the office over the past week but the other day, I noticed the fly count was taking a definite down trend. That's when I noticed they all seemed to be drawn to that gardenia and didn't seem to be leaving.

At first I thought it was the bottle but that was before I saw a couple of the center petals snap shut on a handful of flies. Ah hah! Tain't nothin' but a Venus flytrap, I figured, but that wasn't true either just didn't look right. Course it could be a snapdragon.

That booze just did what came natural and gave that tender, dewy flower a real appetite. It craved meat for the first time in its life.

There aren't any more flies around now and I noticed just this morning the cotton picking bottle's been drained but if you think I'm gonna transplant it or refill the bottle, you got rocks in your head.

That gardenia's just squatin in the top of that bottle regarding the character of the office. Matter of fact, that's one flower that won't be thrown out until it's dead.

Besides, that's the first flower I've ever had given to me by a SYT.

Sure hope it don't know how to play possum.

There is little happening today that makes one particularly swell with pride when it comes to one's membership in the human race.

We have famine, pestilence, disease and other diversions which, in combating them, makes mankind appear to be well on the road to achieving that lofty cauldron filled with the milk of human kindness. But when we stop to think about it, these are paltry amusements compared to what havoc humanity wreaks on humanity.

This became painfully clear to me when I conversed with a lady of Christian tendencies a few night ago.

She was critiquing the newspaper I work for an she would read first one headline and then another. Each time issuing forth an eloquent sigh or shaking her head vigorously and tek, tek, taking. (The latter was particularly offensive to me, since I consider taking a flaw in one's character).

"Look at this," she said "MAN SHOT BY OWN BROTHER" she took.

"King Senecharib, of the ancient Assyrians, was murdered by six of his own sons," I replied.

She paid me no heed. "And this," she cried "WOMAN BURNS ON FAMILY OUTING AS PEOPLE WATCH". She signed loudly.

"Remember Joan of Arc?" I asked. "She's barbecued in front of hundreds."

"Wars in the Middle East?" She moaned.

"A fact of life over there since the time of King Menes—since approximately 3200 B.C.," I replied.

"What is this world coming to? Where is it all going to end?" She

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Warren Spell

Miss Sellers, Mr. Spell wed

Miss Tammy Kay Sellers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Phillips of Runyon Village in Belle Glade and John A. Sellers of Key Largo, became the bride of Joseph Warren Spell, son of Warner Robbins, Ga.

The "1800 style" bicentennial decor wedding was held at the Community United Methodist Church of Belle Glade on April 23.

The Rev. Ralph Johnson, pastor of the church, performed the double ring candlelight ceremony. Mrs. Karen Corbin, organist, played the wedding music. Mrs. Ann Powell Allen, soloist, sang "More" and "Love Story."

The altar table with open Bible, golden crucifix and lighted altar candles centered the altar. Two large standing triple-angled tree candelabra with large white wicker baskets of jumbo sprayed red and blue chrysanthemums, pom poms, baby's breath and leather-leaf fern stood on both sides of the altar table. Red, white and blue candles in the candelabra accented the American flag which stood in the choir loft. Large standing lady palms flanked each side of the altar and choir loft. Bamboo trees were at the corners of the chapel.

Large white footed mums, with red, white and blue, star-print bows marked the family pews.

The bride was given in marriage by her step-father, Jerry Phillips. She wore a Marchabelli "1800 style Jennifer" floor length gown of tissue paper silk overlay on satin. The fitted long sleeves and bodice were covered back and front with embroidered seed pearls and on crochet lace. Silk applied tea-roses sprinkled the front panels of the princess-style full skirt and train. The skirt ended in a large gathered ruffle with seed pearls and tiny satin applied tea-roses edging the throat edge.

The two-layer finger-tip veil was bordered with a Venice lace trim. Tiny applied satin roses and seed pearls encircled the veil cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids, red sweetheart roses, blue baby's breath and white satin-wrapped curls, hearts and pearls, white satin picot ribbon streamers.

Miss Kathy Hart served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Terri, Tina and Tanya Sellers, sisters of the bride. They wore identical floor-length "Scarlett O'Hara" style gowns of velvet red and blue dotted-swiss pattern on white silk organza. The V-neck bodices, short puffed sleeves and V-waist lines were trimmed with red and blue satin ribbon and bows. They carried cameo bouquets of mums centered with large jumbo chrysanthemums, with floor-length red, white and blue narrow silk streamers. Their "old fashioned" Cluster Curl hair-dos were entwined with baby's breath flowers.

The flower girl, Terry Towell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Towell, wore a floor-length "Martha Washington" costume gown of red, white and blue dotted swiss silk organza with white eyelid cap and sleeve trim. She carried a white wicker basket of white orchids and red and blue mums.

The ringbearer, Johnny A. Sellers Jr., brother of the bride, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis of Fort Lauderdale, carried a red satin ring pillow, with stars and streamers. His tux was of white silk brocade, identical to the bridegroom attire.

The bridegroom was attended by his best friend, Donald Moss. Both men wore white brocade tuxedos, white velvet lapels and blue shirts. The attendants, also serving as ushers, were Gray Holton and Roger Moss. Their tuxedos were of dark navy and shirts of white with navy trim ruffles.

The bride's mother wore a pastel moss-green crepe shifon floor-length gown, accented with wrist gloves of lace. A white orchid corsage completed her ensemble. She was presented with a long-stem red rose from the bride after nuptials.

Mrs. Donna Lewis presided over the guest book and greeted the guests in the foyer. She wore a long silk crepe gown of spring flowers print and wore a white orchid corsage.

The reception was held in the church parlor, featuring a sandwich buffet.

The bride's table was laid with a white textured linen cloth with a large gathered skirt. Centers of the cloth were covered with lace panels with the wedding cake at the center of the table. Two single silver candlesticks held white scroll candles on either side of the cake. Two large four-branched candelabra banked each table end.

White orchids and baby's breath floral arrangements lined the candelabra. Centered in the table was the four-tiered cake which stood on six Roman columns, suspended over a flowing crystal garden fountain center, surrounded with cherubs playing golden harps. Blue trim and tiny red roses edged each layer which were separated with columns and cherubs at each column's base. The wedding cake was topped with a heart-shaped floral filly-of-the-valley arch over a love seat holding a cherub type bride and groom, with a golden cherub above the arch of flowers, holding two wedding rings in gold.

The service tables were covered with lace panel cloths over red and blue satin undercloths. Silver trays held finger-sandwiches, nuts and mints. The center floral pieces were on each side of the large antiqued cut-crystal punch bowl. These straw flower arrangements were of red straw puffs, navy and white dried pods and cattails with white baby's breath and Indian paint-brush, set into large 1800 Independence Hall Mugs. Crystal cups and matching trays went with the punch bowl.

Assisting the reception were Mrs. Linda Towell, Mrs. Sharon Rives, Mrs. Donna Lewis, Mrs. Hattie Hart, Mrs. Robert Lewis and Mrs. Irene Nickels was coordinator and florist, aunt of the bride. Miss Robin Phillips assisted with the floral arrangements.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Joanne Lively and son, Malcolm Lively of Jacksonville; Mrs. Irene Nickels of Tampa; Joseph Watson Spell of Warner Robbins, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lewis and children, Johnny and Shannon, Sellers of Fort Lauderdale; Mrs. Frances Woods and son, Michael Woods, of Fort Lauderdale; M. B. Nickels of Tampa; Joan Sellers of Key Largo; William G. Genung of Lake Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Panago of Indian town and Miss Robin Phillips of Key Largo.

The bride wore a navy-blue pantsuit with red trim as her traveling costume, and wore a white orchid with red, white and blue baby's breath bouquet.

The couple honeymooned at Disneyland in Orlando and now reside at South Main Street in Pahokee. The bride is a senior at Glades Central High and will graduate in June. The groom is a 1972 graduate of Pahokee High. He is employed at Terry Moss and Sons in South Bay.

Funeral services held for Mrs. Margaret E. Case

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Elizabeth Case, 55, were held Wednesday morning at the Mixon Funeral Home Chapel on East Palm Beach Road with the Rev. Ralph Johnson of the Community United Methodist Church of Belle Glade officiating.

Mrs. Case was born in Woodruff, S.C. and came to Belle Glade from Hendersonville, N.C. in 1964, making her home at 1608 S.E. Ave. C. She died Sunday at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Miami following a long illness.

She was a veteran of World War II, serving as a chief file clerk in the WAC (Women's Army Corps). She was a member of Community United Methodist Church of Belle Glade and Ladies of Belle Glade Elks Lodge 1716. Until her retirement, she was employed in the accounting department of the Glades Correctional Institution at Belle Glade for six years. Survivors include her husband, Leonard H. Case of Belle Glade; two sons, William F. Case of Belle Glade and Leonard H. Case Jr. of West Palm Beach; a granddaughter, Miss Jennifer Case of Belle Glade; three sisters, Mrs. Ruth Lock of Miami, Mrs. Lella Anton of Spartanburg, S.C. and Mrs. Frances Hendrix of Columbia, S.C. and five brothers, Henry Abercrombie of Woodruff, S.C., Arthur Abercrombie of Woodruff, S.C., Grover Abercrombie of Phoenix, Ariz., Jack Abercrombie of Jacksonville and Alvin Abercrombie of Columbia, S.C.

Pallbearers were Fred John, Bob Cumpston, Roy Carter, Lee Berryhill, Ben Clarke and Donald Williams. Burial was in Lake Worth Memory Gardens in Lake Worth. Mixon Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Local piano students participate in auditions

Eight local piano students of Mrs. Joseph M. Hughes, 1729 W. Canal St., N. in Belle Glade, participated in the National Guild Auditions at Bethesda-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church, in Palm Beach on May 12.

All were admitted to the National Fraternity of Student Musicians with high scores. The annual event, sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Teacher Division of the American College of Musicians, is held in 700 music centers from coast to coast. Judging the students was Norris Bingham, teacher of piano, voice and organ was a graduate of Oklahoma State University. His graduate studies were done at Washington University and Juillard School of Music.

His teachers include Guy Maier, Adele Marcus, Ruth Slenczynska, and Gottfried Galston.

WHERE THE BUCK STOPS

Harry Truman had a sign on his desk: THE BUCK STOPS HERE. Our sign says the same thing, in different words: INDEPENDENT COMMUNITY BANK.

Because when you need a banking decision, we make it here. It is our independent decision . . . not that of a stranger in some distant headquarters bank. Our people know you, know your special circumstances and problems, know this community and have a stake in it. That's what community banking is all about.

Fact is, all the bucks stop here. The dollars you deposit are put to work right in this community. This is where we invest. This is where we lend. Because it's your money, it should work for you. That too is what community banking is all about. Come in and see us, where the personal dimension in banking comes first.

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

Teach your children the good practice of saving for the future. Teach them to attend worship services in God's house by taking them

BY INVITE IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN BY INVITE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long preserve and the freedom which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

It was some kind of game. Last Monday night Wallis Pharmacy and Timesaver squared off in a scrimmage game in which Wallis, after a shaky start, emerged as the victor.

The game actually was to have been played Thursday of last week but due to certain weather conditions it was postponed. Rain, hail I could tell it was going to start off great, the moment we couldn't get an umpire - ulti, we suckered some guy into it. That's all right Harold, you did a pretty good job for your first time - same goes to Sonny Brown, who umpired first and second, we sure appreciate the time and effort.

But to top off the umpire situation, the next thing we noticed were the bases, er, the missing bases that is. Seems someone had removed them from their positions. In fact they were removed from the entire field.

That was okay. With a little ingenuity and a little luck we found a nice emergency kit for bases. Take a green canvas equipment bag from each team, fold it likewise, and place it in an appropriate position on the field, one for first and one for third base. Next, run to your car, get two orange mesh bags (those kind oranges come in only these were equipment bags), and put them at second. Since it is assumed there is a homeplate still there, you now have a "ready-made" infield.

Getting to the game itself as I said our team did have a shaky beginning but we always do. We could manage only one run in the first inning while Timesaver, who has an almost completely different team from last year, led off with five big ones. I tell you, we looked like the "Bad News Bears" out there our coach looked as if she was about to spit nails.

I guess her look was enough to make us a little apprehensive, we only allowed two more runs in the game while racking up 19 for us.

A lot of credit has to go to the Timesaver girls - they played a great game for not ever having played as a team before. Before this season is over, everyone will have to watch their step while playing them.

The game did have its funny moments, with a couple of dogs wanting to play an infield position (either or a baserunner) and one of our players making a desperate dive to third base - it paid off she was safe. Then there was the time Yours Truly got the ball in the outfield and attempted to throw it home. Due to wet grass, the ball was quite slippery and in my haste to throw, it just slid out of my hand over towards first base (the general vicinity). It wasn't funny at the time, in fact come to think of it, it still isn't funny.

McDonald sees good Raider year

While there were more than a few Glades Central students disappointed in the 1975 Raiders' 5-5 record, the Glades Central head football coach said he feels the schedule might actually improve the 1976 team when the Raiders take to the field in the fall.

"Nobody on the team thinks of ourselves as the champions," Coach Willie McDonald said, "so the kids are just going out to build their own reputations."

"We've got a lot of young, eager kids working hard this spring," McDonald said. "One day last week, it was raining pretty hard and we decided to call them in but they didn't want to go in. That was the best workout we've had, I think."

He said most of the would-be Raiders left in the practice sessions taking place each afternoon after school are serious. A total of more than 160 boys came out on the first day of practice but that number has been weeded down to 55 players.

Those players will get their first chance of seeing how good they are and how far they have to go during a spring jamboree being hosted by Pahokee High on May 28.

Besides the Raiders and the Blue Devils, Martin County and Boca Raton High are on the roster for action beginning at 8 p.m. McDonald said that because of the jamboree, the first Glades Central has ever participated in during the spring, the traditional Maroon and Gold Spring Scrimmage has been called off.

The Raiders are scheduled to face Martin County in the second quarter of play and Pahokee in the fourth. All three of the other teams are on the fall schedule McDonald has worked out for the Raiders.

McDonald and Pahokee High Coach Antoine Russell made an agreement earlier this year which will put a different profile on at least two weekends of football in the Glades.

In an effort to avoid conflicts of schedules, with home games being played the same nights in Belle Glade and Pahokee, the coaches have scheduled one game for each school on a Saturday.

Glades Central's Saturday game will come Sept. 25 when the Raiders face Fort Lauderdale Dillard High. Glades Central will be facing three 4-AAAA schools this year, McDonald said, since he was having trouble scheduling 3-AAA teams. The larger schools Glades Central will play are Martin County, Boca Raton and Miami Killian.

In his players, McDonald said the Raiders may begin their first season ever with an inexperienced player starting at quarterback. He said Edgar Arnett, a sophomore who played last season on the junior varsity, has been playing well. He said Arnett is a good passer and may be developed into a running quarterback.

Three Raiders sign

Three more Glades Central football players signed letters of intent to play football for two colleges, both located in the midwest.

Signing the letters Monday were Ernest Jackson, who will be going to Langston University at Langston, Okla., and Lester Finney and Charles Small, who will be going to McPherson College in McPherson, Kan.

Jackson is a two-year letterman for the Raiders, playing at defensive tackle for the local high school. Jackson will be going to Langston as an offensive tackle. The Langston Lions are members of the NAIA Conference District 9.

Finney is also a two-year letterman on the Raiders football team as well as a member of the Raider wrestling team. He was a guard for the Raiders.

Small, a pass receiver for the Raiders, is also a two-year letterman.

Sugar

Another reduction in the 1975-76 world sugar estimate to 81,361,000 tons, lack of rain in Europe during the critical growing season, cash market transactions above spot and futures prices and increases in domestic industrial sugar prices have all improved bull sentiment and propelled our long July positions once again into profitable price levels. Until the market indicates a price inversion we remain suspect of the advance. Long sugar positions, bought 14.40-14.50, should take profits above 15.40 and/or raise stop protection to 14.61 if profits are taken, initiation of long September at the 14.50-14.60 level is recommended with stops then placed at 13.82.

Orange Juice

After trading in a 1 1/2 cent range for fifteen trading days (from April 12th through May 8th), the New York citrus futures market broke out on the down side once again. Prices at the close of May 4th were down 85 to 140 points from the previous close in heavy volume-1000 trades estimated. As the market moved lower, the relationship between deliveries narrowed. The nearby May '76 to July '76 relationship finished at 110 points, well below the normal carrying charge difference of 200 points. With delivered-in fruit at .58 and nearby May futures at .58, the basis has come to zero for the first time since April of 1973. All three of the above elements strongly indicate the OJ futures are finally reaching their springtime bottom. A volume day of 1000 lots represents a climax with tired longs liquidating their positions, and shorts taking profits. The relative strength of the nearby contract indicates an economic bottom. With new buying of unprocessed fruit costs the same as processed bulk concentrate, futures have become a better buy than fruit.

Corn

Old crop corn futures are still deriving strength from the constructive stocks in all positions report which suggested a carryover this October 1st 462 million bushels or less as opposed to more bearish estimates of 550 to 600 million, and some as high as 700 million bushels set forth by the USDA report prior to the report. The latest round of old crop export sales to the USSR although not large by past standards and perhaps well in line with the guidelines set forth in previous discussions and agreements, nevertheless were a welcome addition as they drew attention to the tightening old crop supply situation. This had been further enhanced by a huge export pace of late which has drawn in part from Chicago supplies, resulting in increased commercial demand for old crop futures. Opposed to this is the excellent planting weather and rapid progress of the new crop corn futures. Opposed to this is the excellent planting weather and rapid progress of the new crop which hints that final planted acreage may exceed the 82.7 million acre figure in the April intentions report. Unseasonably cold weather and frost raised some concern, but agronomists surveyed suggested little, if any, damage resulted. The logical conclusion is that the July-December corn spread should continue to widen, and we do not see reason to differ with the argument at this time, feeling that a spread of 30 may eventually be seen. Last week we suggested that previously suggested long positions in December might be transferred to July in view of the latest changes in the statistics. We would now place stops in July below 2.73.

Soybean Complex

Suddenly the surplus of soybeans in the US and Brazil no longer seems to be as oppressively bearish as was the case a few short days ago. At week's end soybean futures had moved up to best levels in fifteen weeks. Nearby soybean meal futures had moved up to their highest price levels in seven months. From a technical point of view both beans and meal were signaling what appeared to be major buy signal, although those fundamentally bearish could see little in the background news to justify such a dramatic change in trade and speculative psychology. The apparent change in attitude is not particularly surprising. For a number of weeks we have suggested that bearish supply totals notwithstanding, speculators might be disinclined to press the short side of the market in view of the anticipated 9.8% reduction in planted soybean acreage. It is obvious that any deviation of 1 to 3 bushels below average yield could result in an imbalance in supply and demand in the 1976-77 season which would cut into the 280 million bushel carryover expected this September 1. In addition, traders might want to see the development of foreign crops, particularly in the USSR, so as to more accurately assess the demand factor in the year ahead, not only for soybeans, but for wheat and corn as well. In addition to internal factors, soybeans are sympathetically influenced by factors which affect the overall grain price structure.

Williams asserts need of Federal legislation on bargaining

GAINESVILLE, Florida's Lt. Governor Jim Williams, in speaking about proposed legislation calling for collective bargaining for farm workers in the state, has affirmed that federal legislation for agricultural employees is what is needed.

Speaking to the Florida Farm Bureau Federation's (FFBF) Young Farmer and Rancher State Committee in Tallahassee yesterday (May 12), Williams said the real impact of collective bargaining for farm workers is a federal issue.

"Under the federal law, the only people who don't have collective bargaining guidelines spelled out are agricultural workers."

"Up to now, Congress has been reluctant to face that issue," said Williams. Williams made it clear to the group of about 25 young farm and ranch leaders from over the state that Governor Reubin Askew had not endorsed any specific collective bargaining legislation such as HB 3095, which was passed by the House Commerce Committee this week and is scheduled for a hearing before the House Committee on Agriculture and General Legislation next week (Tuesday, May 18).

"As a small citrus grower, this legislation poses a problem from a harvesting standpoint. Retired and unemployed people come and pick citrus on a per-box basis when they can find you have organized labor for the harvesting of citrus you're going to put out of business the people who supplement their income, when they can, along with those who pick because they are unemployed elsewhere," Williams said.

"The critical thing is certain commodities in agriculture cannot be harvested with domestic labor, specifically lettuce and sugar cane in south Florida," said Williams.

Williams said this harvesting is done now under contract with the federal government for imported labor. "No domestic labor organization will contract for this type farm work-and no provisions provided under the state law should be written without specific exemption for these products that we cannot now negotiate, even in high unemployment times, for domestic labor," emphasized Williams.

"I don't think this proposed legislation (referring to the collective bargaining bill) will pass this year, and I'm not sure such legislation would be very meaningful in the implementation," said Williams.

"I'm concerned about the problems they have had in California trying to provide for free elections of collective bargaining and the establishment of bargaining units," he said.

Williams added that through his responsibilities to implement collective bargaining for all public employees of state government, he could say, "It's a very difficult task."

Williams also said that he wanted to make it clear that he and the Governor represented management. "Labor is represented by labor organizations at the bargaining tables-we do not represent labor," said Williams.

FFBF President Walter J. Kautz said earlier, before the collective bargaining legislation was passed out of the House Commerce Committee, that such legislation would pose a grave threat to Florida's agricultural industry and would especially place a vulnerable position, since the state's food products would still be open to the threat of secondary boycotts.

Kautz also has called for any such legislation dealing with collective bargaining for agricultural workers to be handled on the national level, as opposed to the state level.

MAY 24-30, 1976

The lay of the year, the beauty of May.

Your summer vacation plans should be complete by now. Jesse Owens broke 5 world records and tied a 6th May 25, 1935. New moon May 28. Long twilight now. Average length of days for the week, 15 hours, 1 minute. Brooklyn Bridge opened May 24, 1883. Civil War ended May 26, 1865. Good example is half a sermon.

Ask the Old Farmer: I like your weather forecasts and I wonder what your secret is. My grandmother used to tell us that certain days the call of January governed the weather for the 42 months of the next year. Can you tell which days are supposed to do this? D.C. Batavia, N.Y.

It used to be said that the first three days in January indicated weather trends for the next three seasons. But nobody ever remembered what the weather was a couple of months later.

Home Hints: Keep a piece of sandpaper handy in the kitchen for removing tight screw-on lids.

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECASTS

New England: Rain along the coast and in south at beginning turn to showers by week's end; warm temperatures throughout.

Greater New York-New Jersey: Early week rainy and cool, then sunny and much warmer; showers later part.

Middle Atlantic Coast: Cold and rainy most of week, with rain the heaviest at midweek; warming over the weekend.

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Early week cloudy and very cool, with rain in east; heavier rain later part.

Florida: Showers through latter part of week in central and south. All week in north, slightly cooler over weekend.

Upstate N.Y., Toronto & Montreal: Week begins with showers and cool temperatures in higher elevations and east; clear and hot end of week.

Greater Ohio Valley: Rainy and cool early week, then clearing and unseasonably hot through week's end.

Deep South: Unseasonably cool to start, with rain in south to midweek; clear and hot over weekend.

Chicago & Southern Great Lakes: Rain and quite cool in south; clearing and very hot later part.

Northern Great Lakes: Clear and dry at first, then turning very hot by midweek and continuing through weekend.

Central Great Plains: Week begins cloudy and cool, then gradual clearing and hot; some light rain later part.

Texas-Oklahoma: Showers end at beginning of week, then becoming very hot midweek, continuing through latter part.

Rocky Mountain: Increasing cloudiness at start of week, then turning cooler; week ends with light rain over most of region, except heavier in south.

Southwest Desert: Showers in east through midweek, light in west after midweek; latter part cooler.

Pacific Northwest: Light rain and cool temperatures early week; sunny and very warm midweek through weekend.

"Eternal vigilance is the Price of Liberty"

Why is it we never hear from the silent majority? It seems we only hear or read about 2% of our population. What about the 98% of good, loyal Americans who go day in and day out abiding by the law, working to make this country a better place in which to live, providing for their families, enjoying themselves and in general being good citizens. Have you ever wondered who they are? I assure that about the only ones we can read or hear in regarding the other 2%? Maybe, it's the old adage - "Bad news travels fast, good news doesn't travel at all." Don't you think it's high time we start publicizing the 98% of our population and the good and wonderful things that this majority is doing and show the rest of the world what America is really like, instead of allowing the small 2% of our country to give a very distorted view to everyone in the world?

by Doyle Conner, Commissioner

Fortunately for the U.S. swine industry, the outbreak of hog cholera in four northeastern states is getting cleared up, but at great cost. It was feared at first that Florida swine might have been involved in the cholera outbreak, but our swine herds of origin have been investigated and found free of the disease.

Cholera was found in a herd being fed garbage in New Jersey. Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New Hampshire also had outbreaks, all among swine feeders.

In the New Jersey outbreak over 15,000 swine were exposed and over 11,000 found to have the disease. These swine were destroyed and the government paid out $1.9 million in indemnity payments to their owners.

There were 17 cases involved in Massachusetts and some $200,000 was paid in indemnity payments to the owners. Rhode Island had one case that cost $17,500 in indemnity payments, and New Hampshire had a three-county area quarantined with $91,900 paid out to the swine owners.

A total of 19,946 swine were destroyed in eradicating the cholera and a total of $2,442,165 was paid in indemnities.

The overall cost of the eradication program is estimated at $1 million. Thus it cost about $3.5 million to get the disease back under control.

The source of the disease outbreak is not definitely known, but there are strong suspicions some swine feeders had supplies of an old cholera vaccine that was outlawed several years ago and had vaccinated their swine, which instead of providing immunity, caused the disease.

The vaccine is still available in other countries, and swine feeders may have brought it in from Mexico. Florida has outlawed the use of the product.

It is reliably estimated that it would cost the swine industry at least $100 million a year if hog cholera was to be tolerated. We can't live with that cost.

Camps underway

A better understanding of man's role in nature is one of the side benefits of a youngster attending one of the Youth Conservation Camps operated by the Game and Forest Water Fish Commission.

Applications are already being taken for summer sessions at the two camps, located in the Ocala National Forest and the J. W. Corbett Wildlife Management Area near West Palm Beach.

For camping sessions begin July 11 and continue through August 21. Both camps maintain one-week sessions, however, campers wishing to remain more than one week may do so with advance registration. Campers staying longer do not repeat experiences, but take part in advanced education.

Both camps are coeducational and are open to youngsters from 8 to 14 years of age. Programs include canoeing, camp cooking, firearms safety, archery, and natural history and basic wildlife biology.

The fee for summer camp is $60 per camper per week with a two-week exploration costing $120.

For information call the Commission toll-free in Ocala 1-800-342-9620 or West Palm Beach 1-800-432-2046 or write Youth Camp Director, 1239 S.W. 10th St., Ocala, Florida, 32670 or 551 N. Military Trail, West Palm Beach, Florida, 33406.

ALL & BOARD! THE SIMON TRAIN

Nearly 500 supporters of the Palm Beach County March of Dimes attended the Country Music benefit headed by Elizabeth Skath and Jim Winters this past weekend at the beautiful Diamond C Ranch in West Palm Beach.

Five bands from all parts of the state performed for those present in the outdoor setting of sunshine, palm trees and cloudless skies while buffalo roamed the pasture in time to the music played by the Southern Express, Kathy Kearn's Southern Breeze, New Heartbreak Mountain Boys, and Don Jarrells Sun Country. Dick McCoy, Butch Goodyear, Gary Baker, and Jenny Lee were featured vocalists with various groups besides the mentioned bands. One of the highlights of the afternoon was the Buck Dancing of Jim Curry, a seven time world champion. Jim and his lovely partner danced to the music of nearly every group before the afternoon was complete, though he seemed to be more at home with the Don Jarrells band.

foot rolling invention is something to behold in itself. Those of you present at the last Hutton Reunion sampled the pork and beef smoked product of Mr. Drawdy.

It would be hard to pinpoint any one person or band as having stolen the show as they were all well received by the Palm Beach crowd who, in my opinion, was one of the best behaved and participant of any I've seen. The serene setting of Tom Walden's Diamond C Ranch had a most relaxing effect on the human mind and nervous system. To compliment the entertainment and vice versa. I suppose the biggest highlight was during Don Jarrells set when Jim Curry taught everyone present how to square dance. Nearly half a hundred gathered hands and cheered back on command from the caller. The dance is truly a part of America that is somewhat of a dying art. Square dancing is one of the most colorful and exciting dances in American history, pity more of us don't.

practice the promanade on a weekly basis as it is an invigorating form of exercise.

David Lowman, Marc Hazebrack, Mac Hughes, Rolando Rodriguez and Larry Thacker of the Southern Express Band donated the sound system, drums and amplifiers as host band for the visiting groups. The assistance was appreciated by each group as it saved total transportation of four different sets of similar equipment and also allowed the show to progress with minimum time lag between exchange of different bands at close beginning of each performance.

Plans are being made for a repeat benefit next year so, looks like I will assemble an even larger cast of entertainers for that outing. Please continue to "Ride the Rails" till next weeks column. If you have any comments or suggestions or have a favorite artist, you would like featured please contact me in care of this paper or at WSWN Radio, Belle Glade.

David L. Reid
Property Appraiser

This column is to answer questions about property assessments in the State of Florida. If you have any questions you would like answered, please contact David L. Reid, property appraiser, room 214 of the Palm Beach County Courthouse, 837-2886, Glades Office Building 996-5311, Northeast County Courthouse, PGA Boulevard 626-6900, South County Annex 278-7711, or this newspaper.

(Q) Will I be notified of my personal property appraisal and should I not agree with the current appraisal, is there anything I can do?

(A) Yes: A "Notice of Appraised Value" card will be mailed to you around the middle of June. This notice card will list the previous and current year's values for your comparison.

If when you receive your appraisal notice, you do not agree with our findings, you should first contact the property appraiser's office and we will be glad to review the appraisal for possible errors. If we find that we have made no errors and you are still not in agreement with our finding, you may then file a petition requesting a hearing before the Board of Tax Adjustment. Petitions must be filed on a date of Florida forms available in the appraiser's office. The law requires these petition forms to be filed with the clerk of the courts no later than July 14th.

(Q) Can I obtain a copy of a building on my condominium apartment the same is available for single family homes and commercial buildings?

(A) Building cards are not available for the condominium apartments. We do not appraise condo apartments separately, as free standing buildings.

Rodney was in the forefront of the resulting most daring act in the colonies—the assemblage of that Congress which met in New York in 1765 to defy the King at tremendous risk.

Outraged by the Stamp Tax, Virginia's House of Burgesses went into stormy session, drafting the defiant Virginia Resolves, stating that only Virginians could tax Virginians. What a body of men that was—to include the likes of Randolph, Wythe, Fairfax, Washington, Mason, Henry, two Lees, Benjamin Harrison!

However, before the session was over, those Virginia Resolves were watered down by the softer men to take the treason out of them. A copy was delivered immediately to Jos. Royle, Royalist editor of the Virginia Gazette. Even this diluted version was so shocking to Royle that he suppressed any mention at all in print of these inflammatory Virginia Resolves.

Meanwhile the angry Burgesses retired to Raleigh Tavern where, refueled with strong waters, they dispatched copies of the unrevised, undiluted Resolves to other colonies. In these drafts the most treasonous parts had not been crossed out.

The other colonies therefore published the uncut version of the Resolves which they thought Virginia had passed. Emboldened by the action they thought Virginia had taken, they issued the brazen call for a Congress of all colonies in New York in 1775 to support Virginia & adopt the Resolves as a group.

Now the point about Rodney is this. While other, perhaps greater, leaders still straddle a painful divide loyalty-King vs. Colony—Rodney has a more dangerous yet more comfortable position. He thinks against the King; he speaks against the King, & none is in doubt he will recklessly act against the King...if that awful moment should arrive, which many now think possible.

These men might each have to vote to remain British subjects or break off clean from the crown. Which men will seek an accommodation with the crown...perhaps in exchange for damning information about the others? Which would stand — die or endanger their families?

In the case of Rodney, delegates feel they know where he'll stand.

Alston participating in exercise

Navy Storekeeper Third Class Kenneth E. Alston, 20, son of Mr. William R. Alston of 324 N.W. 14th St. in Belle Glade, is participating in Operation "Solid Shield '76" aboard the frigate USS Edward McDonnell, homeported in Mayport, Fla. The two-week joint exercise off the North Carolina and Georgia coasts involves 39 ships and more than 50,000 men and women from all branches of the Armed Forces.

The exercise will include air, surface and submarine operations and an amphibious assault. It is designed to test command and control plans and to provide training in the procedures for emergency evacuation of noncombatants from a simulated battle zone.

A former student of Glades Central High School, Alston joined the Navy in December 1973.

Look what grew in our field!

If you said to yourself, that looks like a building, you're right... but it surely did grow in our field! Why, you may remember when you could buy gas for about 19c a gallon at the old Shell station on this property, sit and talk over the latest on the war, next door at the old Dixiana Lunch. Even before that, B.D. Cole Insurance was serving Belle Glade over at 100 S.W. Avenue B, where Otto Blech and Mr. Dwyer handled claims for the '29 hurricane. In 1935, we've been right here for a long time... your neighbors and friends. Please come into the beautiful new building now in our field at 1 Avenue E. We're here and we're here to stay!
